Navigating the Delaware Highlands

Milford Magazine seeks to contribute to the best definition of community, a community that is defined not just by shared demographic characteristics, but by shared values. We value the quality of life we enjoy. We value diversity, respect differences, and welcome those new to the area. We value protection of the environment and cultivation of the area. We value the critical importance of smart growth and fear the risks posed by unfettered sprawl. Most of all, we value integrity and service to those with whom we share this planet, this continent, and especially those with whom we share the majesty of the Upper Delaware River.
