I support free speech but this is a private educational forum. Should scholarly historical journals be obligated to accept your articles if they do not meet certain intellectual standards?

I do plan to read your book, however, and post a review. And while I deplore your obvious anti -semitism I do not deny the possibility that I might learn something about the Kennedy assassination from your work. Since I do not like to read online you can expect a check in the mail.

Mr. Astucia, just curious...did you know that "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion" is a forged document?

Salvador, I don't think your comments are as racist as they are silly. Your notion of "jewishness" is silly. People with one or two distant relatives of one religion are not themselves a member of that religion. Now if you want to take it to the next step and state that being 1/8 or 1/16 of a minority group makes you "secretly" a member of that group, then you clearly have no understanding of American culture, where we are almost all proudly and defiantly mutts. Your determination to look for a secret personal agenda behind LBJ's actions says more about you than it does about him. I think the question you should ask is why no President before or since ever stood up to Israel. Has every President, including the current one, been a secret Jew? I suggest you spend your time trying to analyze why the American religious right is so in love with Israel before you attempt any more Presidential family trees.

Excellent post. You beat me to it. The answer to this question concerns the way some groups are organized into pressure groups. This does not only explain why successive presidents have supported Israel's foreign policy, it also explains why Bush won the last election by getting the support of the Christian Fundamentalists.

The only answer to this is for Americans who hold different views to form their own pressure groups in order to pressurize your two political parties to adopt more sensible policies. The stakes are high. If you fail in this mission the world will be destroyed. Either from nuclear war or global warming.

I thought you might be interested in this email I have just received from Salvador Astucia. Hopefully, you will now understand how we were trying to handle a difficult situation.

John Simkin: Your fellow propagandist, Andy Walker, has essentially revoked my posting privileges, although he claims he's merely monitoring my posts. The bottom line is my messages are not being posted on the message board. So in effect, it equivalent to having one's privileges revoked. Frankly, it was a gutless move. He's giving people the false impression that I left voluntarily, so he can claim he runs an open forum. Even for an obvious propaganda operation, your forum is really bad. Not just flawed. It's very bad. It's worse than the Usenet. And your moderating abilities? The worst. Poor. Very poor. Perhaps you should consider retirement. Seriously.

He has not gone, but he cannot post without our permission. Therefore, he cannot make racist comments. That is I hope what members wanted.
